memories of classes enrich daily life

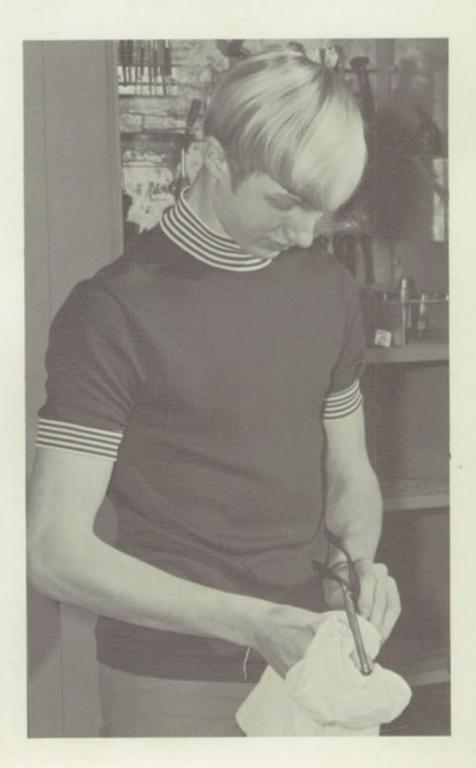

Students examined frogs for biology, adjusted lighting for the stage, hung from stairways, participated in basketball, and worked in the shops.

Teachers, awards, classes, and books

Teachers who played an important part in the L. V. story taught classes and gave out awards on Awards Day.

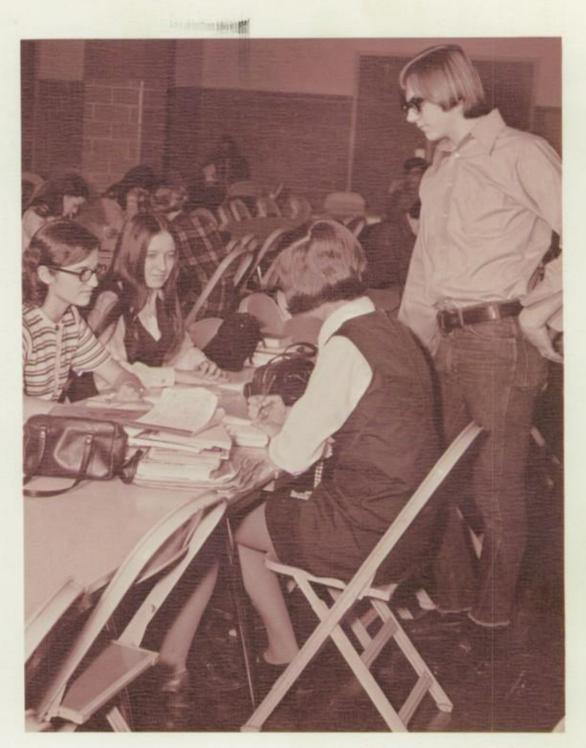

During the course of a busy day, students prepared for home-economics classes and loaded with books they changed classes.

Study halls, too, were important in the L. V. story. Students read books, worked on algebra problems, wrote English papers and discussed assignments with other students while in study halls.

About school are horns, balls, and papers

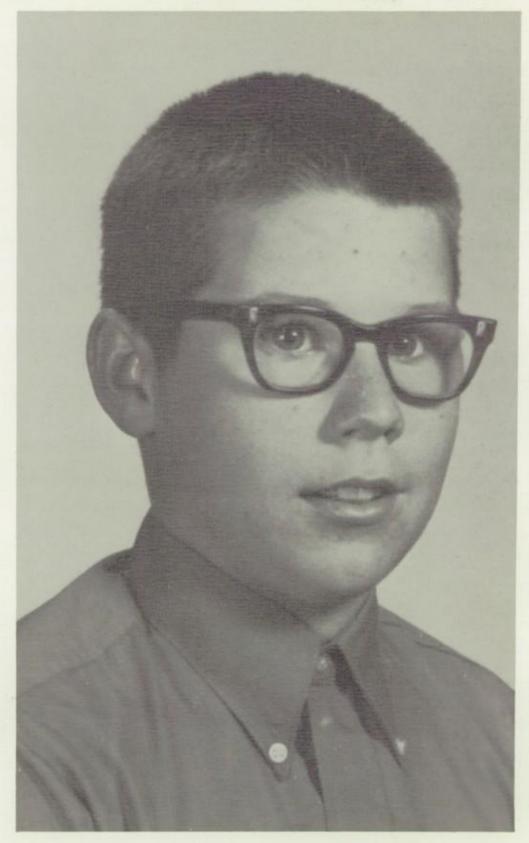

Among the most treasured relics of school life were those inanimate objects that provided frustration as well as pleasure.

Junior-Senior prom festivities begin

Sophomore Brian Kruk was assisted by Karen LaMantia as he announced the names of the guests in the Grand March.

Manager of the Ligonier Holiday Inn, Richard M. Repie, crowned senior Christy Fulcomer Queen of the Prom.

Holiday Inn, Ligonier, was the setting for the 1970 Junior-Senior Prom, "Love Is Blue," held on May 8. One hundred couples attended the prom.

Following the Grand March and the crowning of the prom queen, Christy Fulcomer, a banquet was served in the main ballroom after which guests danced to the music of "Fire."

A post-prom party followed at twelve midnight until five-thirty when breakfast was served to the guests.

Waiting to step out for the Grand March were Connie Tantlinger and Kevin Glova with Rosalie McMaster and Daniel LaMantia close behind.

Although the attention of Mark Leydig and Susan Treasure was elsewhere, Brian Kruk noticed the camera as the photographer snapped this picture.

During an eventful evening the dance floor was crowded with guests doing the latest dance steps to the music of Fire.

Dancing, smiles, and conversation

One guest who danced "up a storm" was Mary Garland.

Enjoying a free moment were Judy Reven, Paul Shetler, Rosalyn Boring, Wally Robinson, Carol McDowell and her date.

Senior girls lined up on the veranda to await the judges' decision for prom queen.

From Temuco, Chile, to Bolivar is 6,000 miles. This is the distance Manfred Stotz traveled to live with the Schaller family.

Manfred, who speaks German, Spanish, and English, has two brothers and a sister. His father is an accountant in a hardware store in Temuco which has a population of 110,000. His mother is a housewife.

In Temuco, Manfred attends a German private school where he is a twelfth grade student.

In his free time he enjoys swimming, track, skiing, horseback riding and soccer. Also he specializes in photographing landscapes and city buildings.

During his summer vacation, he and his family live on their dairy farm where he takes care of the herd and supervises the farm hands.

When Manfred returns to Temuco, he will finish his twelfth grade and then attend a university to study chemical engineering.

Since Manfred Stotz spends part of his time on his farm, he is familiar with farm work. Here Kirk Schaller and he are taking out the tractor to cut hay.

Grass grew quickly on the athletic field. Mr. Titmus can testify to this as he mowed it with the school tractor.

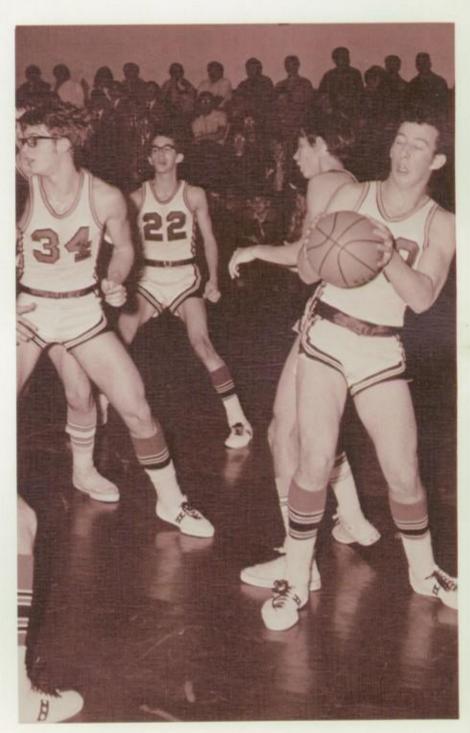

Custodial staff supervisor, Mr. Clifford Alwine saw that repairs were made, boilers heated the building and general tasks were performed during the school year.

Getting cleaning supplies ready to begin the job of cleaning the school was Mr. Zimmerman.

During a game, Coach Marshall gave a new play to center Terry Howard, while Coach Toy shouted instructions to the players on the field.

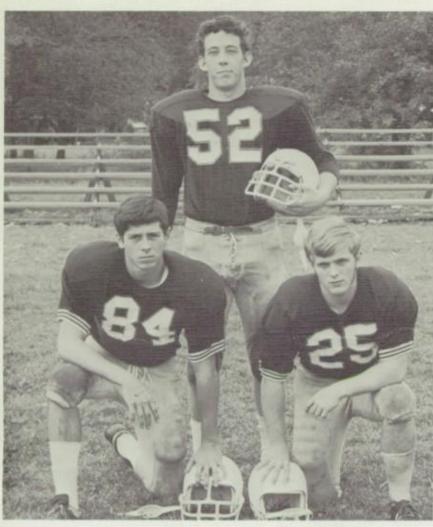

Beginning with the third week in August, the football players gathered at the field to begin their daily workouts. Although the practices were long and filled with exercises such as "Burma Road" and "Lombardi Grass Drills," the boys faced the season with high spirits.

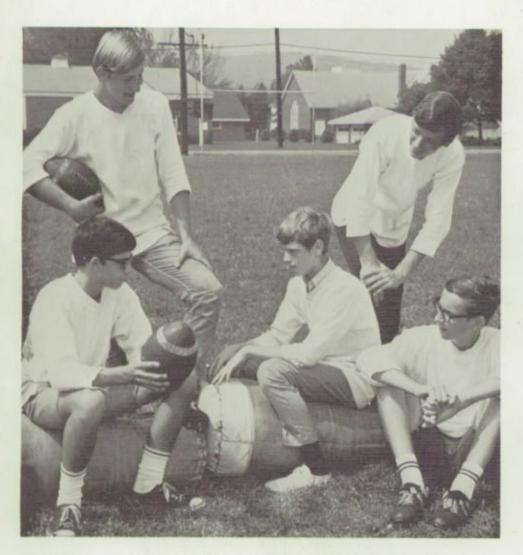

During the season, the boys developed attitudes of good sportsmanship, strength and stamina, even though the season ended with a record of 2-6-1.

Dribbling in expert form, Guard Doug Wagner set up a play which netted the Rams two more points.

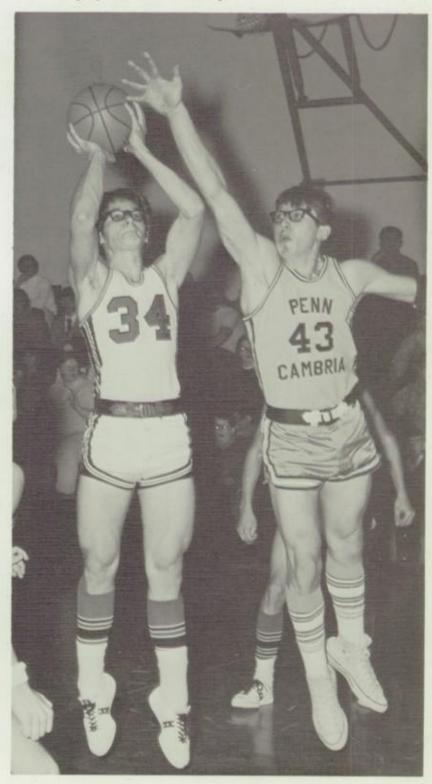

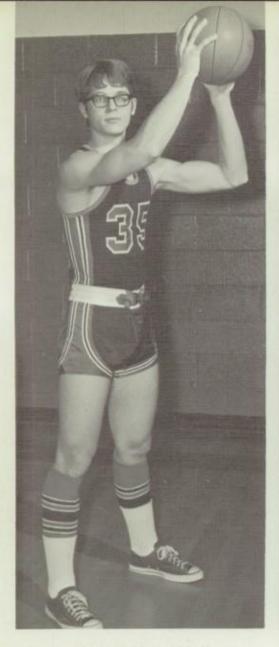

Rams repeated this season as champions in both the West Central League and Northern Cambria Section A. West Central League victory was scored against Forest Hills 48-44 on February 12.

Early in the season after the Rams had built up a commanding lead in both leagues, they began to take more time on their offense and to put more points on the scoreboard. Cagers Gregory, Detwiler, Harnish, and Anderson continued their merciless scoring barrage against all opponents. Doug Wagner and Mark Leydig helped to account for the victories with their fine ball handling.

On March 26 at the Civic Arena in Pittsburgh before 6,755 paid fans, the Rams were upset by Mount Penn 66-41 for the Class C state championship.

For three consecutive years, veteran Coach Andrew Pahach and Assistant Coach Tom Bryson led the varsity Rams to District 6 Class 'C' playoffs.

Serving their first year as junior high basketball coaches, Mr. Treasure and Mr. Abbott led their teams to a successful season. Mr. Treasure coached the ninth grade Rams while Mr. Abbott led the seventh and eighth grade Rams.

Varsity managers Joe Colson and Ray Zamiska check the team's first aid kit before the Purchase Line game. Managers kept players in top physical condition. After a game they collected the warm-up suits and practice balls. During the game they kept statistics which they reported to the coaches at half time.

Band Director Mr. Gorirossi skillfully conducts the band during the Spring Concert.

With Mr. Gorirossi carefully watching their routines and drills, the majorettes and marching band gave their first performance of the year at the first home football game on September 11, 1970. This performance was followed by appearances at four more home games, Johnstown Halloween Parade, and Winchester, Virginia, Apple Blossom Parade in the spring of 1971.

The most productive practice sessions were held at band camp during the last two weeks of August. At that time new routines were rehearsed for half time shows at football games.

The majorettes held a bake sale in New Florence to raise money to purchase summer uniforms and sweaters.

Laurel Valley's majorettes posed on the school lawn with the symbolic L. V. bell and the Laurel mountains in the background.

Each Tuesday and Thursday during the eighth periods students in grades seven, eight, and nine met in the band room for cadet band practice.

They rehearsed many different types of songs and performed in the spring concert on April 30, 1971. Some members of Cadet Band participated in the Junior High County Band held at Derry on March 26, 1971.

At the spring concert, Scott Bowden displayed his ability to play the trumpet.

Senior Chorus presents their first

Senior chorus practiced Tuesdays and Thursdays with the accompanist Theresa Luntz.

Valley Liters — Larry Kimes, David Glessner, Rick Lynn, and David McClure — sang at the Christmas program, PTA meetings, and the spring concert.

At Christmas the Senior Chorus presented their first informal program. On the stage, chorus members were grouped about a large stone fireplace. Judy Decker and James Cengia were narrators for the program. The Chorus sang many favorites such as "Winter Wonderland," "White Christmas," and "I'll Be Home for Christmas."

From September to May the chorus rehearsed twice a week during the eighth period. The annual spring concert in April featured many popular songs, old favorites, and the "Hallelujah Chorus." A solo by Roberta Cunningham and selections by the Valley Liters were special attractions of this program.

Library Club performs essential services

At each meeting of the Library Club, a member reported on the books he had read. One of the projects at the Library Club was to decorate the library for Christmas. Another project the members were involved in was collecting books to take to a hospital.

During the school day members of the club worked in the library, checking and sorting books. Their money raising project was a candy sale in the spring. At the end of the school term a banquet was held for the club members.

Library Club officers— Annette Carosella, vice-president; Ruth Morris, treasurer; and Deneb Grady, president— examine new books in the library.

Science Club membership is open to students in grades ten, eleven and twelve who plan a career in science.

In December the club made a trip to Pittsburgh to visit Phipps Conservatory and Buhl Palnetarium.

During club meetings speakers talked on LSD and other interesting science topics. Also club members saw movies on Lazer beams and ecology.

Stage band performs before local organizations

Stage band met every other Tuesday during the activity period in the band room to practice and to improve technical skills. The members' reading ability and feeling for good intonation improved through these sessions.

In April the stage band along with the marching band and choruses participated in the annual spring concert. Student directors had an opportunity to prove their leadership qualities.

After a rehearsal Randy Goughnour and Rod James wait for Joe St. Clair to cover the bass viol.

National Honor Society inducts

National Honor Society membership includes two sophomores with provisional standing, eight juniors, and eleven seniors. Members are chosen by the faculty.

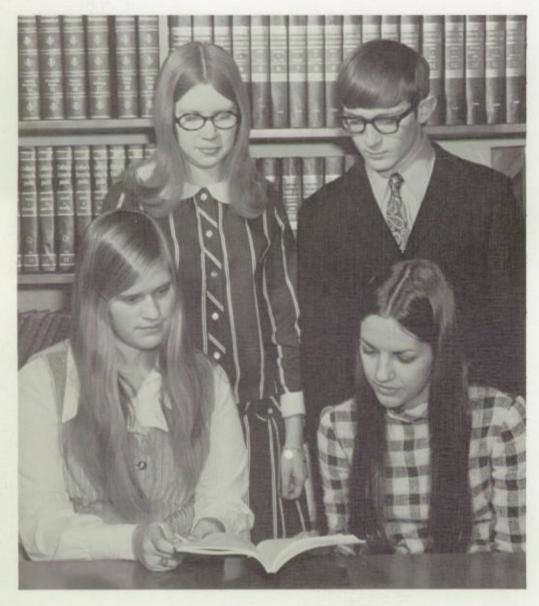

This society recognizes excellence in scholarship, character, leadership, and service. Membership consists of fifteen percent of the senior class and five percent of the junior class.

Induction of new members was held in March, 1971, during an assembly for the senior high students. Under the leadership of Wally Robinson and the guidance of Mr. Jones, the club sponsored the spring induction and the traditional tea for members, parents, and guests.

As a service for the school, members checked coats at basketball games.

At the induction service in May, 1970, Theresa Luntz approached the stage with her candle, a traditional symbol of the ceremony.

National Honor Society officers- (SEATED) Helene Longenecker, secretary; Marie Carosella, vice president; (STANDING) Darlene Speidel, treasurer; Wally Robinson, president-looked for new program ideas in the handbook.

During the National Honor Society induction, Jan Tomb walked down the aisle of the auditorium to be inducted into the society.

RAM-PAGE Editors who supervised the planning, writing, and arranging of the articles for "The Ligonier Echo" were Regina Luther, David Gable, Donald Carosella, Theresa Luntz, Sue Howe, and Cathy Galbraith. The publishing of this page required cooperation from all organizations and clubs.

News stories and pictures were printed about the seniors' Washington trip, the senior play, basketball scores, student honors, and faculty items. Work and planning sessions were held in the conference room. Although the page was published only every other month, the reporters searched everyday for news.

Board members determined a fundamental budget and a basic curricula. This group divided the budget to meet equipment and repair demands, salaries, textbooks and teaching supplies, and health and lunch services.

The Board is interviewing architects to select and to make a feasibility study to determine which would be better—to add on to the Laurel Valley Building and the Carey High School Building or to build a completely new high school. An issue important to Laurel Valley students concerned the wearing of pantssuits by the girls. The school bus transportation contract was awarded to Stiles Bus Lines for 1970-1971.

solutions to crowded conditions at L.V.

At school board meetings Mr. Robert Shirey and Mr. Milroy Carnahan worked closely on projects affecting education in the Valley.

Mr. Robert Shirey, past Board president, has presided at meetings since 1967. He has been a capable leader in progression of the merger between the Ligonier and the Laurel Valley districts.

In work sessions Board members considered school policy, bussing problems, care of facilities, budget, and new projects that will provide the highest quality of educational opportunity for all young people they serve.

Administrators organize educational

Mr. Milroy Carnahan, superintendent of schools, works with other administrators and staff members to provide a coordinated and functional program to meet the needs of more than 4,000 youth of the Ligonier Valley.

On July 1, 1970, Mr. Milroy Carnahan officially assumed his duties as superintendent of schools. During the previous year he had served as acting superintendent.

To provide the proper facilities for study, Mr. Carnahan, high school principals, and coordinators of special services were involved in many hours of hard work behind the scenes. Extensive planning was necessary for the in-service day for elementary and secondary teachers on January 22, 1971. Secondary teachers participated in a program centered around the needed preparation for an evaluation by Middle States during 1971-72.

Problems concerning bussing, dress codes, overcrowded classrooms, and hair lengths were issues also faced by administrators.

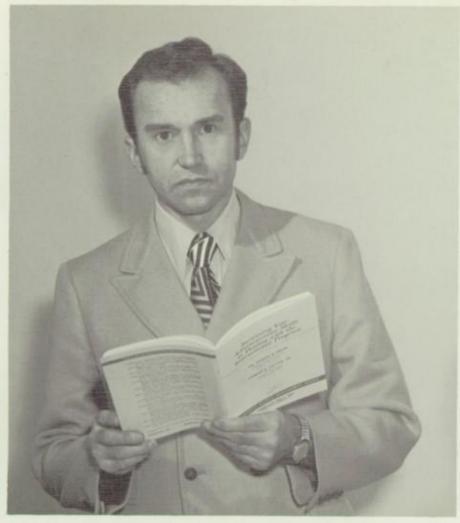

Administering IQ tests to students is part of the work done by Mr. Francis Voyten, school psychologist.

Courses of study, textbook selections, and in-service training programs are the responsibilities of Mr. Enoch Wooton, curriculum coordinator.

programs for youth of Ligonier Valley

Students and faculty welcomed back High School Principal Fred Pickup who returned this year from a leave of absence to complete graduate work.

All financial affairs are handled by Mr. Orvis Steimer, business manager, who prepares the budget and checks faculty requisitions for teaching supplies.

Mr. Pickup always manages to find time during his busy day to meet with seniors to discuss their problems and to learn their views on school policies and the dress code. Also he grants approval for extra-curricular activities.

Staff performs a variety of services

Students who have been absent for a number of days can expect a call from Mr. Fred Nipps, home and school visitor.

Miss Kathy Piasente, secretary to the guidance counselors, is kept busy typing letters, student schedules, and test scores.

Miss Linda Magnani, secretary to Mr. Pickup, must spend part of her busy working day on the phone for appointments or information relative to the office of the high school principal.

Faculty are involved in many activities

On Awards Day, May, 1970, Mr. Pahach hands out letters to members of the basketball team who played in the Class C, State Championship Finals, in Harrisburg in March of 1970.

"Oh, no! Not another touchdown!" seems to be the expression on Mr. Marshall's and Mr. Jones' faces as United scored another touchdown.

Art students decorated the showcase and bulletin board in the lobby for special occasions and holidays with their original work.

Library facilities offered the students the use of seven thousand volumes as well as a rapidly growing number of records filmstrips, and pamphlets.

Laurel Valley's marching band won third prize in the Johnstown Halloween parade. Junior and Senior High Choruses gave concerts at Christmas and in the spring.

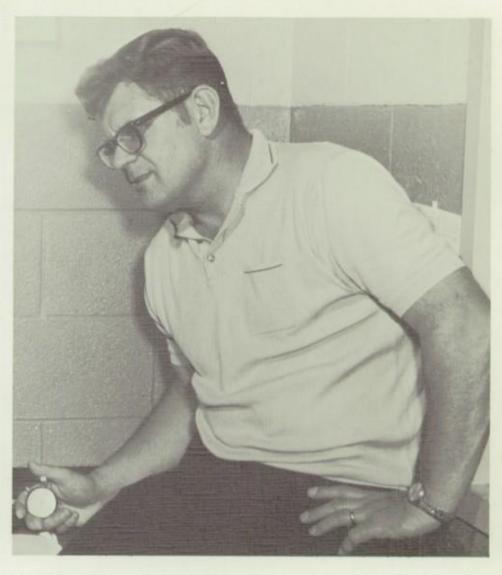

This year's health classes studied mental hygiene, anatomy and first aid. The art of self-defense was one activity mastered in girls' gym class. The boys' gym classes played basketball, football, and snowball.

Mrs. Norma Hornack, speech therapist, (B. S.) uses a mirror and tongue depressor to correct speech defects.

A mixture of classical and contemporary literature was selected for all students to read. This list included works by Chaucer, Steinbeck, Shakespeare, Frost, Sophocles, Golding, and many other novelists and poets. Students reported on these authors and on their literary themes.

Modern language lab equipment was used in learning both Spanish and German. Spanish classes traveled through Spain via filmstrips. German classes learned many German songs and made Christmas cards.

Mr. John Sekela (B.S.) eats his lunch as he looks over new material for his junior high science classes.

Laurel Valley offered general science to students in seventh through ninth grades as a background for biology, chemistry, and physics.

In addition to studying the natures of plants and animals and chemical compounds, mixtures, and solutions, biology and chemistry students took field trips to the Pittsburgh Zoo, Phipps Conservatory, U. S. Steel Research Center, and Buhl Planetarium.

New mathematics concepts were taught to junior high students, while academic senior high students studied algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and advanced mathematics. Senior high commercial students took business mathematics. The math program ranged from the basic operations of arithmetic to advanced studies.

Mr. Hayes Treasure (B. S.) glances up briefly as he makes out grades for his economics students.

Psychology, a new elective course, was added to Social Science curriculum and offered to interested senior high students. Sociology was also offered to senior high students.

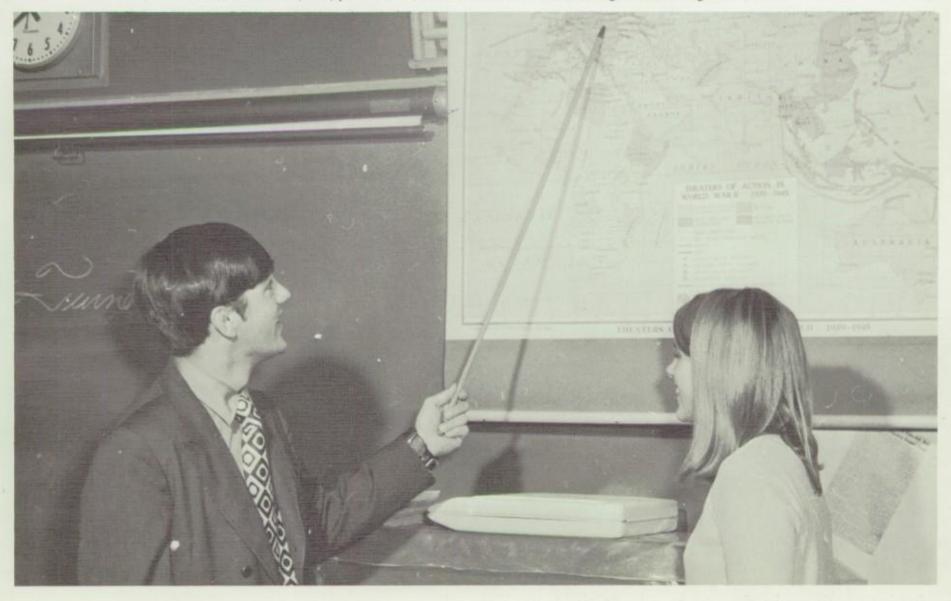

Other courses such as World Cultures, civics, American history, Problems of Democracy, and geography, which are required for all students grade seven through twelve, round out the curriculum. Filmstrips, records, maps, charts, and pamphlets were used by the teachers to stimulate interest and to make material easier for their classes to comprehend.

Mrs. Bonnie Woolf (M. Ed.), typing teacher, shows Pam Bouch an exercise to master for increasing her speed and accuracy.

Assisting students with personal problems and vocational planning were only a few of the many duties of Mr. Allen and Mr. Dohoda. Academic juniors met with Mr. Allen in special guidance sessions to select colleges and careers. Mr. Dohoda met with seventh grade students to help them adjust to the new routines of junior high school life.

In occupational education students spent each nine week period at a different job station and received on-the-job training. This vocational education permitted students to learn at their own rate while they received training for future jobs.

Safety education and drivers' training taught sophomores and juniors safety procedures and driving techniques. In drivers' training students learned in dual-braked cars to become responsible operators of motor vehicles.

Student teachers from IUP during the first semester were Miss Connie Herald in the English Department and Mr. Todd Stevenson in the Social Studies Department.

In clothing class Cindy Caldwell presses her material and the seams as she makes her dress.

Wood shop and metal shop classes interested many boys. "Wood shop projects gave students the satisfaction of creating," said Mr. Pahach. A lot of lumber was converted into end tables, gun cabinets, and sawdust.

Foods classes sent many strange scents through the halls, but everyone was glad to sample those strange concoctions. In clothing classes sewing machines, steam irons, and pinking shearers turned out some good-looking outfits. Hiding the zipper and following pattern layouts made some seamstresses' tempers flare.

In metal shop George Zimmerman looks over a metal shaper which he has learned to operate.

An arc welder is used in vocational agriculture class to learn to do heavy welding chores. Here Daniel Lear and Ira Mc-Cauley are practicing proper procedure to use this device.

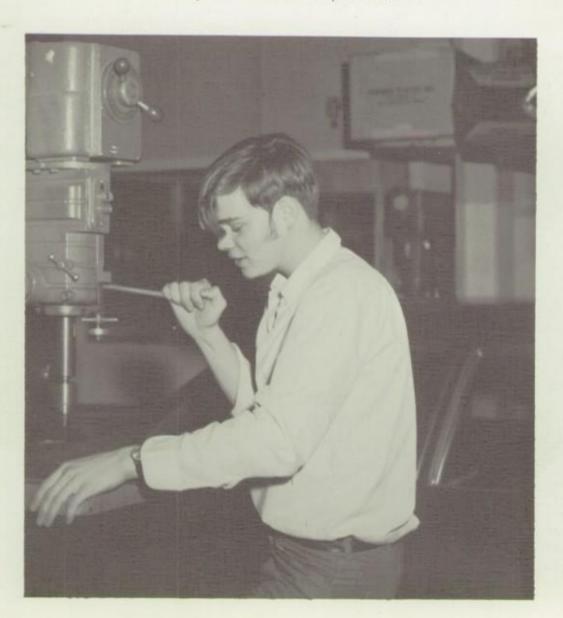

Learning to draw a piping diagram for an industrial building are John Fletcher, Brad Foust, and Lynn Shearer. Vocational drafting is a three year program. After two years of study in this field, boys can work on co-op one half day at local industries.

Members of the eighth grade class participated in a variety of activities. Many of the students belonged to chorus, cadet and marching bands, student council, and clubs.

Sports programs attracted many young boys. In August some boys reported for football practice. During the fall and winter those athletes interested in basketball practiced and played for the seventh and eighth grade basketball team.

The students studied a variety of subjects. Many took Algebra I for the first time. In English they studied grammar and worked diligently in their workbooks.

The eighth grade class sponsored a dance on March 19, 1971. Members of the seventh grade and ninth grade classes were invited to this event.

Freshmen were given many different tests by Guidance Counselor Mr. Stanley Dohoda. These tests, in preparation for college and further schooling, included the Differential Aptitude Test, the Test of Academic Progress and the Kuder Interest Inventory.

In seventh grade wood working class saws, files, hammers, and planes cause a lot of noise when work gets going. Gregory Csehoski files a cutting board, Robert Horrell holds a sanding block, and Dennis McMaster also files a cutting board.

A FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

Most residents of Laurel Valley have seen the new Conemaugh electric generating station taking form. A huge project it is—with its 1,000-foot stacks and its 370-foot hyperbolic cooling towers. Quite a few people have noted that the big cooling towers fit in rather nicely with the countryside—a pleasant art form that goes well with nature.

But did you ever think of this big, new power project as a friend of the family a friend of YOUR family! Although you may not have the remotest connection with the building or operation of this important new plant, it is your helping friend as it exerts its invigorating impact upon the entire local economy. Directly related, of course, are long-term jobs for approximately 140 station people—and steady employment for possibly 900 miners. Indirectly, the effect of these jobs and wages spreads out to include all of the area's residents—doctors, lawyers and merchant chiefs, and the butcher, the baker and the tax collector.

We, the companies building the Conemaugh Station, are happy to be your new neighbor—and pleased that, in improving service to our customers, we can also provide worthwhile economic benefits to residents of this delightful valley.

Congratulations to the Graduating Class of Laurel Valley High School

MELLON BANK (My hero) Ligonier Office

Walter Gropius, the late world-famous architect, wrote to a group of high school students who had asked for career advice:

"For whatever profession, your inner devotion to the tasks you have set yourself must be so deep that you can never be deflected from your aim. However often the thread may be torn out of your hands, you must develop enough patience to wind it up again and again.

"Act as if you were going to live forever and cast your plans way ahead. By this I mean that you must feel responsible without time limitation, and the consideration whether you may or may not be around to see the results should never enter your thoughts. If your contribution has been vital, there will always be somebody to pick up where you left off, and that will be your claim to immortality."
